THERE'S QUALITY IN EVERY Summit Mackinaw Coat

SOME thirty odd years ago when the Northwest was just beginning to grow and the early settlers and woodsmen spent a great deal of their time out in the open, during the cold, snappy winter days, there was a great need for clothing that was comfortable, waterproof, wear resisting and that would allow a man to get about with ease and comfort.

It was necessary to use a thoroughly dependable fabric that would "stand up" under the severest weather conditions.

To meet these requirements we used a special grade of long fibre, all wool, Western mackinaw cloth that had been thoroughly scoured and cleansed before weaving and then washed after weaving.

This scouring process eliminates the grease and oil, which makes it comparatively light in weight but gives to the finished fabric the best possible wear and weather resisting qualities.

This mackinaw cloth made up into coats and suits was the most comfortable and practical clothing ever constructed for outdoor wear.

This was over thirty years ago, and no other fabric has ever been or will be made that gives so much bodily comfort and practical service as mackinaw cloth.

The styles have changed since we first made mackinaw coats, and today you will find a Summit Mackinaw Coat for every purpose, made in styles both for town and country wear in different and more up-to-date patterns, but the real all wool mackinaw cloth is still used in every Summit Mackinaw garment.

You will find other mackinaw coats on the market, but to insure perfect satisfaction insist on seeing the Summit label in the coat you buy.
